A Review of the last Craftſman, with explanatory REMARKS.

THE Malecontents have very frequently complain'd that their Words have been tortured, their Expreſſions ſtrain'd, their Sentiments rack'd in order to make themſelves odious, their Printers and Publiſhers criminal: I can ſafely ſay for myſelf, that tho' I have very often endeavour'd to ſet the Viſions and Allegories of the Craftſman in their true Light, yet I never once had a Thought of ſubjecting either Authors or Publiſhers, to any Pains or Penalties whatſoever; except the Contempt of their Readers, induced from a proper Conception of the Malignity of thoſe Diſcourſes which are Weekly ſent into the World to vilify his Majeſty's Adminiſtration, and to inſpire the People with Principles of political Enthuſiaſm, or rebellious Madneſs

IT is with this Intention ſolely that I have determined to conſider the Craftſman of this Day; and to conſider it in this Light: The Purport therefore of my Paper, ſhall be the ſetting forth the true Senſe of this. If I am miſtaken, he can eaſily ſet me right; for as it is poſſible that an Allegory may have two Keys, ſo if he is able to produce another, which will fit the Lock as well, I ſhall be content that it be taken for the true one, and mine rejected as a falſe one, tho' made with no bad Intention. But if Mr. D'Anvers ſhall avoid explaining himſelf on this Subject, I ſhall take Judgment before the Publick by default, and inſiſt upon it that he ſtands convict of Libelling the higheſt Court of Judicature, and the moſt auguſt Aſſembly in the Nation.

THE Craftſman opens his Allegory thus: 'Theſe 'Reflections naturally lead me to the Conſideration 'of a Perſon once of the higheſt Diſtinction and 'Merit, but now fallen from his exalted Character 'into the loweſt Diſrepute and Inſignificancy. I will 'not ſay in what particular Country this Perſon dwells 'at preſent; but he lives in Europe; if he may be 'ſaid to do ſo at all in the State of Exiſtence he now 'is in. He breathes it is true; but that is almoſt the 'only Sign of Life he hath about him. He neither 'does nor can exert any of thoſe noble Faculties he 'once poſſeſſed; but is now abſolutely in a State of 'Indolence, Supineneſs, and Stupidity.'

THE Word Perſon, in the foregoing Paragraph, ſeems to me to refer, as I ſaid before, to the ſupreme Court of Judicature, and moſt auguſt Aſſembly in this Nation: As to the Drift of it, I preſume it is ſo apparent that it needs no Explication. The ingenious Author goes on to obſerve, that the Anceſtors of this Perſon have frequently maintained long Conteſts, and gone to War even with the Kings of their own Country, in order to ſupport the Liberty of it; whereas the preſent Perſon is grown tame and ſubmiſſive, &c. What ſort of Liberty was contended for in the Barons Wars, hath been ſo often and ſo well explained, that any farther mention of it would be ſuperfluous here; and as to the Submiſſion of the preſent Perſon, it is a Term this Gentleman has fallen upon to expreſs Duty.

Mr. D'Anvers proceeds to compare Magna Charta to a Treaty extorted by Force, and from the Humour of the whimſical Victors engroſſed on a great Card, which he ſays was formerly kept with great Care, but at preſent is little minded, and almoſt wore out. Where the Wit of this lies I know not, unleſs it muſt paſs for an indubitable Sign of Wit to expreſs one's-ſelf in burleſque Terms on the moſt ſolemn Subjects, and to endeavour to make the preſent Age laugh at what their Anceſtors held ſacred.

WE are next informed, that from the Policy of Henry VII. the Commons were put into a Condition of balancing the Lords, that the Nation hath from thence received great Benefits by the Co-operation of thoſe Powers for the publick Good; the former exerting themſelves as a Grand Inqueſt in ſearching out publick Criminals, and the latter by their Judgments, not only removing ſuch Criminals from the Power of offending farther, but making them Examples alſo to future Ages. This the Author is ſo kind to confeſs was the Practice in Days of yore; but at preſent he aſſerts, that the Sword is borne in vain. I ſay he aſſerts it, and thus his Conceſſion, as to the Integrity of the L—— in former Ages, becomes a Reflection on ſuch of their Deſcendants as live in our Times.

THE following Paragraph contains the Author's Sentiments on the Head of Appeals; and here he is not content with ſtriking at this High Court of Judicature, he muſt ſneer alſo at common Judges; thoſe he repreſents as ſleeping over the Cauſes they ought to hear, and thoſe as voting by Proxy in Cauſes they never heard at all: Flagrant Falſhoods both, and ſuch as proclaim as well the Ignorance, as the Inſolence of the Faction.

THE four or five and twenty Pair of dirty Lawn Ruffles in his ſucceeding Sentence, carry ſo unmannerly a Reflection on the Religion, as well as the Conſtitution of this Nation, that I am ſurprized he was not afraid of ſhocking even the moſt abandoned of his own Party by this low and ſcandalous Alluſion. That it might be the more glaring, and conſequently the more taken Notice of, he has tack'd to it more explanatory Circumſtances than to any other Paſſage in his Allegorical Narration. He is pleaſed to ſay, that this is a Subject the Wags of the Age are inclined to treat with Ridicule; and among the Number of theſe Wags he enrols himſelf. I crave Leave to ſay, that this waggiſh Society are neither better nor worſe than a Crew of Engliſh Blaſters; and I think the Publication of this Paper was very properly timed, otherwiſe we might have ſeen the grave Caleb D'Anvers make the ſame Figure in a Britiſh Report, that Peter Leus does in one tranſmitted from our Siſter Nation.

FROM the L—— in Lawn, the Craftſman makes a natural Tranſition to the L—— in Scotch Cloth; and from jirking the old Engliſh Conſtitution, proceeds to give a Cut or two at the Union. But here I think he is a little unlucky in his Inſinuations as to Poverty; for if I am not very much miſtaken, ſome of thoſe on whom he reflects, have as good Eſtates as any of his Patrons, tho' I am perſuaded they have not half their Skill in Improving them. The Alluſion to Ribbands, blue, green, and red Cockades, and Hats and Feathers, is very intelligible, and at the ſame time very ridiculous, ſince it is evident it might have been made at any other Time, and may be made at any time hereafter with the ſame Propriety; whence it is evident, that it hath no Propriety at all, but was thrown in to keep up the Laugh among ſuch as know not at what they Laugh, but are willing to be merry at the Expence of their Wit, their Loyalty, and their Conſciences (if they have any) and reſolve to make themſelves amends for the Loſs of them, by turning all ſuch into Ridicule, as preſerve any Reſpect for ſuch antiquated Things.

WE are next entertained with a burleſque Criticiſm on the Debates in that Auguſt Aſſembly; we are told, that nothing is more common, than for them to advance problematical Propoſitions, without any Regard to Truth, and then to proteſt againſt them, to ſhew they have ſome remaining Regard for Truth. Very whimſical this; but what Regard to Truth has our Author, who can advance ſuch Stuff as this in the very Teeth of the ſtrongeſt Evidence, becauſe the reading of any one Proteſt is ſufficient to inform any Man of the Folly and Falſhood of this Compariſon. But as if Aſſurance was to be always his own Characteriſtick, this Character-Drawer will needs repreſent the Conduct of thoſe he ridicules as ſtuped and lethargic, tho' the whole Nation is apprized of nothing better than of their Activity, Vigilance, and moſt exemplary Zeal for the Honour and Welfare of their Country on a late memorable Occaſion. Whom does he hurt by this?

THE Itch of finding Fault, is ſo extravagantly ſtrong upon him, that he muſt needs exert it in reſpect to Money Matters, and upbraids thoſe whom he has taken it into his Head to cenſure with Careleſſneſs in this Reſpect, tho' a contrary Conduct would have been held a direct Violation of the Conſtitution. On this Head again he allows their Anceſtors a great deal of Merit, for they are dead and gone; whereas the Majority of the preſent Lords are Foes to his Faction, and cannot conſequently have any Merit at all, no not ſo much as that of common Senſe, which formerly might have been pretended to by the meaneſt Man in this Kingdom.

THE laſt Paragraph is a moſt unaccountable Rhapſody. He puts his Pupils in mind, that about Eighty Years ago they were, by the Phyſicians of thoſe Times, (Phyſicians who ſhed the Blood of their King, and brought their Country into a Conſumption) declared abſolutely loſt and uſeleſs. He then talks of a Reſtoration, their preſent Uſeleſs State, and the little Appearance of Hope, unleſs from another Reſtoration, Reformation, or Revolution, which he aſſerts muſt make a great Change in their Conſtitutions; that is, turn over the Majority to the Malecontents. He then drolls on the Rules of the H——, the U—— of the B—— R——, and the Decorum kept up in this Aſſembly, concluding with theſe Words; How is the Mighty fallen? Sneering at once on the LORD OF HOSTS, and the H—— of L——, to ſhew himſelf a Freethinker both in Religion and Politicks; that is, one who aims at the Deſtruction of Government in any Shape, unleſs in the Hands of his own Party

THE Nature and Tendency of this extraordinary Diſcourſe, when ſeriouſly and impartially conſidered, will, ſurely, open the Eyes of the underſtanding Part of the Nation, and enable them to diſcover the true Source of that Flood of Corruption which threatens univerſal Deſtruction. If Contempt of Religion, if a Diſregard for the firſt Principles of Morality, if an Hatred to Civil Obedience, if Scoffing at the Laws, if raiſing a Horſe Laugh at Loyalty, if openly deſpiſing the Conſtitution, &c. as they are generally known to be, the glaring Lies of the preſent Age, to what can they be more properly attributed, than to Papers like this of which I have been ſpeaking, wherein all that concerns our Honour, Credit and Happineſs, as a Nation, is avowedly ridiculed, and deſignedly made the Sport of the Mob?

St. J——, May 21, 1738. R. FREEMAN

Extract of a Letter from Marſeilles, dated May 1. O. S.

'LETTERS from Smyrna ſay, that when Sary-'Bey-Oglon left that Town, he fell upon ſome 'Caravans which he met two Leagues from that 'Place, and took as much Cloth from 'em as made 'Cloaths for 2000 Men; that the ſaid Rebel con-'tinues to make great Ravages in theſe Parts: That 'the Grand Seignior had ordered 10 or 12,000 Men 'to march againſt him under the Command of the 'Baſhaw, which Troops were already gone by the 'City of Smyrna, with ſeveral Pieces of Cannon, 'Bombs, and other Ammunition, and that the 'Baſhaw had Orders to re-take the Town of Eski-'Hiſſar, and then to attack the Rebels. We have 'Advice from Conſtantinople, that the Grand 'Seignior has reſolved that Siege ſhall be laid to the 'Fortreſſes of Aſoph and Oczakow, and that the 'Grand Vizier had Orders to give Battle to the 'Ruſſians, whenever he finds an Opportunity.'

A Letter from Warſaw ſays, that the Grand Vizier, who tho' not experienced in War, is a Perſon of a moſt reſolute and enterprizing Spirit, has promiſed to re-take Oczakow, or to loſe his Life in the Attempt.

Franckfort, May 14. O. S. They write from Siegen, that publick Notice is given there that the Emperor has conferred the Adminiſtration of the Principality of that Name on the Prince of Orange, and the Prince of Naſſau Dillenbourg.

She had no Children by her Marriage with the Duke Chriſtian of Saxe-Weiſſenfels, who died the 17th of June 1736. They write from Copenhagen, that the Queen of Denmark has lately created 5 Knights of an Order of her own Inſtitution, called the Order of Fidelity, of whom three are the Duke of Wirtemberg-Oels, of the Lutheran Branch, the Baron de Pleſſen, Steward of the King's Houſhold, and the Baron de Solenthall, heretofore Envy Extraordinary from the King of Denmark to the Court of England.

They write from Paris, that Voltaire's Epiſtle upon Envy has been ſuppreſs'd by Order of the Chancellor, in order to prevent new Diſputes betwixt that Poet and the Abbe des Fontaines, who is pointed out in that Epiſtle by the Title of Gazetteer.

Dreſden, May 10 O. S. The Court has received Advice that the Queen of the Two Sicilies, who lay

As many Medals were diſtributed for two Days together, on account of the Marriage, as are ſaid to amount to the Value of about 3000 Crowns, and that the Peaſants had the greateſt Share of them. On one Side of thoſe Medals a Hand is repreſented breaking out of the Clouds with a Crown, and placing it on two Hearts, with this Inſcription, Coronum merentur; and on the Reverſe there is *Caroli utriuſque Siciliæ Regis, & Mariæ Ameliæ Regni Poloniæ Principes Sponſalia. By the Bedford, Capt. Wells from Bengall, who arrived off Dover on Monday laſt, the Purſer of which came to Town Yeſterday Morning, we have Advice, that there happened a terrible Hurricane at Bengall on the 30th of September laſt at Midnight, which continued four Hours; in which Space of Time the Decker, Capt. Edward Williamſon; the Newcaſtle, Capt. Richard Crabb; and the Devonſhire, Capt. Lawrence Prince, were forced on Shore and broke to Pieces: What was ſaved of the latter Ship was ſold for 1001 Rupees, which is about 120 l. The Damage done on Shore was very conſiderable. The Lyell, Capt. John Acton; the Hallifax, Capt. Thomas Manley; and the Princeſs Louiſa, were drove aſhore, where the former continued 40 Days; but they all got off; and fortunately for the Company, none of them had more of their Ladings on board than ſome Saltpetre and Redwood. A Nephew of Mr. Juſtice Probyn, who was a Mate on board the Princeſs Louiſa, was in this Storm killed by the Drum of the Capſtern Head. The Pelham, Capt. Mead Woodford, was loaded home, had a Pilot on board, and juſt ſailed, but not having been heard of ſince is feared to be loſt. We have no certain Account of the Grafton, Capt. Culprit. All the Country Ships were loſt; three of which were overſet, and all the People drowned; as were alſo three long Boats. A Dutch Ship was loſt at the ſame Time. The Bedford left Bengall on the 7th of December, ſhe had been aſhore three Days.

A Letter from Charleſtown ſays, that on the 3d of April a Veſſel arrived there, the Maſter of which reported, that coming by St. Auguſtine, he ſaw two Sloops and two Top Sail Veſſels in that Harbour, and two more in the Offin, ſteering for it, which he judg'd to be Ships from the Havannah.

An Infallible REMEDY

For BROKEN-WINDED HORSES,

WHich has been publiſhed and ſold many Years before any Counterfeits in other Forms appeared; and highly commended from one Friend to another. The vaſt Quantities that have been ſold do alſo verify its Efficacy and Virtues, for it moſt perfectly cures them, after all others Means have been ineffectual, to a Wonder, in a ſmall time, without Confinement; by attenuating and opening the Globules of the Lungs dried up, and all the Paſſages obſtructed by Humours dripping thereon, occaſion'd by hard Riding, Colds, &c. It cauſes preſently a free Perſpiration, renewing its Force, Vigour and Length again, as well as ever.

It immediately cures thoſe Horſes only a little touch'd in their Wind, as alſo all continued Coughs, Colds, Wheezing, &c. being excellent in preventing many other Diſtempers incident unto them, by maintaining, preſerving, and continuing a good Breath.

And in a word, by this very Medicine alone, many Horſes have been made ſo perfectly ſound, that they have been ſold and valued from 10 to 30 or 40 Pounds, which by being Broken-winded, could not before be ſold for 3 or 4 Pounds.

It is ſold at Mr. Sandwell's Toy-Shop at the Griffin, the Corner of Buckler's-Bury in the Poultry, at 4 s. 6 d. the Quart Bottle, with Directions for taking it; and no where elſe in England.
